A SINGER from the Isle of Wight is through to the final of Sky1's 'Sing: Ultimate A Cappella', with her group Timeless.

Lindsey Bonnick, 32, originally from Shanklin, appeared on show with her vocal harmony trio - made up of herself, Chloe Dixon, 26, and Lauren Potter, 26, now based in Portsmouth.

Lindsey grew up on the Island before leaving to pursue a singing career and now works full time as a singer.

They are the only act representing the South Coast.

Lindsey said: "It has been very hard not telling everyone how well we did in the competition. We desperately wanted to shout it from the rooftops, but we were sworn to secrecy, which was also quite exciting.

"Now we have to do it all over again for the results of the final."

The final airs on Sky1 at 9pm on November 10.
